Raytheon Corp. announced that its Caloric Corp. plant in Tipton will cease operations by the end of October.

Tipton to lose largest employer

By Edward Connelley
Reading Eagle Staff Writer

The loss of Tipton's largest employer, Caloric Corp., will be felt not only by the town's employees, but also by the township and school district that rely on the tax revenue.

"Caloric was born and raised in Tipton," said town manager K. Ray Steward. "It's a shame to see it go, but it's a reality."

Caloric, which has about 200 employees, was founded in 1969. It was acquired by Raytheon in 1987. Raytheon is a major defense contractor.

Caloric's main product is the M1028, a 105mm howitzer. It is used by the U.S. Army and other military forces.

The loss of Caloric will result in the loss of about 200 jobs. This will have a significant impact on the local economy.

Steward said that the township and school district will have to find other ways to make up the lost tax revenue.

He said that the township is currently looking for other businesses to move to Tipton. He also said that the school district is looking for ways to reduce its budget.

Caloric's closure is part of a larger trend in the defense industry. Many defense contractors are being forced to close or move out of the area.

Steward said that he is optimistic about the future of Tipton. He said that there are many other businesses and industries in the area that can help the town recover from the loss of Caloric.

He said that he is confident that Tipton will be able to attract new businesses and industries in the future. He said that he is confident that Tipton will be able to recover from the loss of Caloric.

County, and Brandywine Township.

Schools also were impacted. The district, which has about 1,000 students, will lose about 200 students.

planned closing to Raytheon headquarters in Lexington, Mass., and newly named Caloric President Thomas Hall was not at work Monday.

Hall replaced Marvin Carney, an executive at Amana, in June as president. Carney served as an interim president after Caloric closed its manufacturing operations.

McCracken said Monday the recession has changed the minds of Raytheon officials. "The main reason we're closing it is to reduce costs and improve our competitiveness," McCracken said.

There were some statements made last September (about keeping existing operations going), but the impact of the recession on our business has changed our plans," he said.

"The whole appliance industry is in a downturn," McCracken said.

It was steeper than we anticipated and our costs were higher than anticipated."

McCracken was unable to give specific financial data on Caloric's performance. But Raytheon in its 1990 annual report noted major-appliance sales of $1.04 billion in 1990, down slightly from $1.07 billion in 1989.

Raytheon devoted five paragraphs in its annual report to Caloric, calling 1990 "a year of repositioning."

Raytheon, which makes the Patriot missile, reported 1990 as a good year with net income up 5.4 percent to $57.3 million, sales up 5.4 percent to $5.2 billion, and earnings per share up 6.5 percent to $8.53.

Caloric manufactures gas and electric ranges, refrigerators, dishwashers and other cooking appliances under the Caloric, Modern Maid, Glenwood and Sunray brands. It has manufacturing plants in Florence and Delaware, Ohio.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Mobil Oil Corporation, P.O. Box 839, Valley Forge, PA 19482, phone number (215) 343-7705 intends to make application to the Department of Environmental Resources for a Water Quality Management Permit for the discharge of industrial waste water in a manner which meets the PA Department of Environmental Resources' requirements, from its facility located in Sinking Spring Borough, Berks County, PA. This is a new discharge of a temporary nature of groundwater treated for the removal of contaminants prior to discharge to a storm drain leading to Cacoosing Creek.

This application is made under the provisions of the Clean Streams Law, the Act of June 22, 1937, P.L. 1987, as amended.

Persons who wish to comment on this application should contact the Company as indicated above, or the Department of Environmental Resources at the following address: Regional Water Quality Manager, 1875 New Hope Street, Norristown, PA 19401 after June 30, 1991.

Death at Heim is suspect

Mercy killing a possibility

By Kevin Cramsey
Eagle/Times

Coroner William R. Fatora on Tuesday said the June 13 death of Berks Heim resident Mildred Strickler is suspicious, and that recently obtained information suggests the death was a mercy killing.

He said the case has been turned over to state police at the request of police in Bern Township, where Berks Heim is located.

Troopers said Tuesday they are conducting a preliminary investigation, and this morning said they are awaiting the results of medical tests.

Fatora said he has received the results of toxicology tests performed at National Medical Services in Willow Grove, Montgomery County, but has not yet determined the cause of death.

"Dr. (Neil A.) Hoffman must interpret the findings for me," Fatora said.

Hoffman, forensic pathologist for the Berks County office, will discuss the findings of the autopsy at the Berks County Courthouse, the coroner said.

Fatora said Hoffman initially performed the autopsy at the Berks Heim nursing home, but later moved it to the Berks County Courthouse.

He said Hoffman will perform the autopsy on Wednesday.

Death of Rizzo throws Phila. race into turmoil

Gray said, "he never hesitated to speak his mind."

"Frank Rizzo was in particular an advocate for effective law enforcement and for the rights of law-abiding citizens," said Attorney General Dick Thornburgh.

But critics remembered his police force as corrupt and brutal and said Rizzo alienated minorities both as police commissioner and mayor.

In the 1983 campaign, Rizzo boasted to a reporter that he would "make Attila the Hun look like a faggot."

Rizzo, the son of an Italian immigrant who also was a police officer, was born in Philadelphia. A high school dropout, he served in the Navy and worked at a steel plant before joining the police force at age 22.

He gained prominence in the 1960s when he led raids on gambling houses, after-hours clubs and brothels. He became commissioner in 1967.

Agreement on START announced

Associated Press

LONDON — President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev today announced agreement on a historic treaty to reduce their arsenals of strategic nuclear missiles and said they would hold a superpower summit in Moscow at the end of the month.

The so-called START agreement would slash long-range nuclear weapons by about 30 percent and be the first agreement in history to reduce the number of the atomic-era intercontinental missiles, bombers and submarines.

"We have moved far away from the threat of nuclear war. It is our common victory," Gorbachev said at a cordial news conference that concluded his luncheon with Bush at the U.S. ambassador's residence here.

The summit is tentatively set for July 30 and 31, an administration official said.

The accord was announced just before Gorbachev made a plea for economic assistance to Bush and the leaders of Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Canada and Japan.

By announcing the agreement in advance, Bush and Gorbachev made sure that the Soviet leader would not go home without some dramatic news, even if he didn't get a massive package of aid.

The product of more than nine years of negotiations, START has been hanging in the balance since Secretary of State James A. Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh held four days of intense negotiations in Washington, ending Sunday with one last area of disagreement.

■ G-7 summit hears strong appeal from Gorbachev
See Page 8

Bessmertnykh asked to meet Baker today in advance of Bush's luncheon with Gorbachev and brought "some new positions," the administration official said. After a 15-minute session, Baker took the proposal to Bush, and the deal was set.

"Before you withdraw the invitation, we accept with pleasure," Bush told Gorbachev in their televised interchange through interpreters.

Bush said the summit would last two or three days and that the leaders hoped to sign the arms treaty that has been in negotiation for nearly ten years.

"There was compromise on all sides," said Bush.

Under the agreement, the Soviets would have to reduce by one half — to 154 — the number of their SS-18 missiles capable of hitting the United States. The United States, on the other hand, would retain its advantage over the Soviets in such categories as long-range bombers and cruise missiles.

Overall, the treaty would limit the United States to 10,400 nuclear warheads, down from 12,000, and the Soviets to 8,000, down from 11,000.

There was no description of how negotiators had resolved the final "throwweight" issue, involving allowable warhead limits on certain missiles. Gorbachev said simply, "We were told that all of the issues were solved."

Proposal for hotel dies as developers back away

By William Casey
Eagle/Times

City officials Tuesday said a proposal to build a 134-unit hotel at Second and Penn streets has fallen through as a result of the developers backing away from the deal.

"There was no one deal-killer," said Ronald E. Miller, city director of development and inspections. "Given the entire (financing) package they decided not to go ahead, that it was not in line with their development portfolio."

The decision puts an end to a 21-month drive by city officials to pull in the five-story Quality Suites Inn as an element of the western gateway to Reading.

The Quality Suites proposal had been stalled for many months until April, when a consortium of local banks agreed to provide needed private financing.

"I think the city took all reasonable steps to secure the hotel project," said Mayor Warren H. Haggerty Jr. "It's no secret that this is a very tough financial market for hotel development."

"Despite this setback, we are prepared to go back into the marketplace and try to develop a hotel for the downtown as quickly as possible."

Haggerty said the demise of the plan also does not alter the general development scheme for the site at the northwest corner of Second and Penn streets.

"The gateway concept continues to be at the forefront of the city's planning considerations," said Haggerty. "With the demise of the hotel, other appropriate uses could be considered."

Officials of proposed development group, The Indepco Group, Philadelphia, and Ellis Management Corp., West Chester, could not be reached for comment. Miller said an Indepco official contacted him earlier in the day with the final decision.

The two firms had until Monday evening to accept proposed financial terms, but indicated in private talks with city officials last week that prospects were slim that they would do so.

In recent months, officials had been increasingly hopeful that the project would succeed, basing their optimism on the agreement by local banks to provide $2.53 million in private financing.

The city initially had agreed to provide more than $4.1 million in development assistance to the project, with Ellis and Indepco putting up $2.7 million.

Miller said provisions later demanded by the city — to assure continuing commitment by the developers if occupancy and use rates were less than projected — apparently were not part of the decision Tuesday.

"We had a couple of things that they weren't crazy about," he said. "But they didn't feel they could live with the entire package driven by the banks' terms."

Supreme Court gets New Morgan appeal

By Eileen Cornish
Eagle/Times

The battle of New Morgan has made its way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In a petition, Evergreen, a grass-roots organization opposed to the formation of the borough, and Caernarvon Township ask the high court to overturn a state Supreme Court ruling granting incorporation.

New Morgan was carved out of portions of Caernarvon and Robeson townships, but Robeson is not part of the current appeal.

"We think the U.S. Supreme Court is worth a last-ditch effort," said Elizabeth Giordano, president of Evergreen, a 200-member group of residents who have been fighting incorporation since it was granted in April 1988.

up to one year to decide whether to hear the case.

"We feel very strongly they will hear it," Giordano said Tuesday.

Chesler County developer Raymond H. Carr, who heads a development partnership that owns the nearly 3,700 acres of New Morgan, plans to build a $1 billion Victorian-style resort and residential community there.

A 250-acre landfill also is proposed for the site.

The townships and Evergreen have contended that Carr wanted the incorporation to avoid zoning requirements for the landfill.

Carr could not be reached for comment Tuesday night. He has denied from the onset that creating the landfill was the purpose behind creating the borough.

City woman jailed in Heim death

DA: Suspect may have done similar act in past

A handcuffed Loni E. Krick, 28, of Reading, is taken Wednesday to her arraignment in the death of 79-year-old Berks Heim resident Mildred Strickler.

By Kevin Cramsey
and Steven D. Sacchetti
Eagle/Press

Judge Scott D. Keller this morning set bail at $500,000 for 28-year-old Loni E. Krick of Reading, charged in the apparent mercy killing of Berks Heim resident Mildred Strickler — while authorities said the suspect may have done this before.

State police Wednesday said Krick, of the 200 block of South Fifth Street, gave Strickler, 79, a lethal combination of the sedative Alprazolam — known by the brand name Xanax — and an unknown type of alcohol as Strickler lay in her bed June 13.

During a courthouse bail hearing, District Attorney James M. Bucci said police have received information that Krick was involved in this type of "criminal, horrible deed" on at least one prior occasion.

But investigators said they do not have any more information.

Keller committed Krick, a former Leader Nursing Home & Rehabilitation Center employee, to Berks County Prison on charges of criminal homicide; first, second and third degree murder; involuntary manslaughter; aggravated assault; and recklessly endangering another person.

If the suspect is able to post bail, Keller said, a condition would be that she is to have no contact with prosecution witnesses.

"Witnesses are very afraid of any repercussions by the defendant," said Bucci, who cited that among the reasons for asking for the high bail amount.

The district attorney called the killing a terrible crime, considering the age and helplessness of the victim.

Police said they have received information that Krick was force feeding Strickler before the victim died.

Trooper Edward P. Kowalski said the apparent motive is that Krick believed she was performing a mercy killing.

Furthermore, investigators said Strickler's daughter, Lillian L. Beitz of Robesonia, was with Krick when the drugs and alcohol were administered to her mother, a former Womelsdorf resident.

Beitz's involvement is still being investigated. She has not been charged.

Officials said Krick has lived at her current address since September. Prior to that, she resided in Lebanon County.

Police said they have received information that Krick was employed at Leader homes in Spring and Muhlenberg townships. Investigators plan to check with Leader officials to see when she worked there.

Krick was not a Berks Heim employee. This morning, Sylvia Messina and Kathryn Weachuck, administrators at the Spring and Muhlenberg Leader homes, respectively, confirmed that Krick formerly worked there.

While youngsters enjoy the rush of cold water from a city fire hydrant in the 300 block of Spruce Street, city officials warn that the practice is illegal and is potentially dangerous.

The city took no punitive action in this case.

Open hydrants are not so cool

From our news staff

Although it may seem like a fun way to cool off on hot summer days, opening a fire hydrant could cost a life — and it's illegal.

City Fire Marshal Dolores A. Lora cautioned Wednesday that when a hydrant is opened, the water system is sapped of its strength.

"There is no doubt that a kid could get hurt opening a fire hydrant, but they could be endangering someone else's life," Lora said.

Second Deputy Fire Chief Michael J. Moyer agreed.

"It drains the water system for firefighting," Moyer said. "Also, sometimes the city water bureau will shut off a hydrant if they are having a problem with people opening them, and then we could have a problem."

"With the heat in the past day or so, it has really been a problem."

"I just tell the kids to use the garden hose or join a pool."

Both of which could be cheaper than paying a fine, because it is illegal to open a fire hydrant. The fine could reach up to $300.

According to Moyer, there are no city programs to open fire hydrants and attach sprinklers upon request, unlike in Philadelphia.

The hot weather is not expected to relinquish its stranglehold on Berks County soon.

The temperature hit 91 degrees Wednesday, and the forecast from Accu-Weather calls for more of the same heat and humidity today with a high of 94. For Friday and Saturday, the highs are expected to reach 96.

"Right now, an area of high pressure is strong in the middle of the country (and) that is preventing moisture from the Southeast to come north," Accu-Weather forecaster Kevin Degroot explained.

"The high will stay strong," Degroot said, "but it may weaken on Saturday or Sunday long enough to allow a front to dip south and give us a thunderstorm."

Raifsnider given 2nd polygraph test

From our news staff

Muhlenberg Township police have administered a second polygraph test to Keith Raifsnider as part of an intensified investigation into the July 5 slaying of Raifsnider's wife, Kathleen D. Chief Harley N. Smith reported Wednesday.

Smith said investigators are posing over results of the second test, given late last week after results of a July 9 polygraph proved inconclusive.

If the results of the latest polygraph also fail to shed significant light on the case, the chief said, a third test will not be given to the 29-year-old Raifsnider.

Meanwhile, investigators said they spent Wednesday interviewing acquaintances and other associates of the 35-year-old victim.

And police said they are preparing to ship evidence they have gathered over the past several days to federal and state crime labs for analysis.

A meeting planned Wednesday with the entire Raifsnider family at police headquarters was postponed until next week, investigators said. Family members will be asked at that interview to trace the events of July 5, the day Raifsnider was slain, police said.

Yatron facing heart surgery

From our news staff

U.S. Rep. Gus Yatron is suffering from heart problems and will undergo corrective surgery as early as next week, his staff said Wednesday.

The 63-year-old congressman was admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland on Tuesday after experiencing chest pains in Washington following one of his near-daily walks, according to his Capitol office.

He was reportedly alert and in good spirits and was scheduled for release sometime this afternoon.

Tests performed Wednesday showed Yatron is suffering from coronary heart disease and a damaged heart valve, Dale T. Morris, the congressman's spokesman, said.

No date for the surgery has been set, but it will likely take place next week at the Bethesda hospital, Morris said.

"Congressman Yatron will be scheduled for bypass surgery soon, and he will also have the heart valve repaired," Morris said. "He is in good spirits and resting well and looking forward to returning to his duties as soon as possible."

Yatron underwent separate hip replacement operations two and 2½ years ago, but has no other history of health problems, Morris said.

"He exercises all the time," Morris said. "He's a former athlete. He's in good shape."

His exercise routine usually consists of a brisk walk, and it was following a walk early Tuesday

Daughter included in Heim probe

From our news staff

State police this morning said they are investigating whether Robeson resident Lillian L. Betz had any involvement in the June 13 death of her 73-year-old mother, Berks Heim resident Mildred Strickler.

Loni E. Krick, a former nursing home employee, has been charged with murder in the apparent mercy killing of Strickler. Investigators are trying to determine if Krick, 28, of the 200 block of South Fifth Street, may have previously committed a similar killing.

L. Edward E. Spewak of the Reading state police barracks said troopers have not received any information that Betz was involved in the killing. Investigators said Betz and Krick are friends.

Troopers said Krick gave Strickler a lethal combination of a prescription drug, Kanax — a sedative — and ethyl alcohol.

Meanwhile, Coroner William R. Falora said he plans to serve subpoenas today at Leader Nursing & Rehabilitation Centers in Spring and Muhlenberg townships requesting Krick's employment information and a list of all deaths that occurred while she was at the respective facilities.

Administrators at the two facilities said Krick worked as a nursing assistant for a month at the Spring Township home. She was employed during 1981 at the Muhlenberg Township facility, but officials did not state her capacity.

Neither administrator disclosed why she left.

Krick is in Berks County Prison in lieu of $500,000 bail on murder and related charges.

On Thursday, District Attorney James M. Buccini said state police received information that Krick was involved in a similar killing on at least one prior occasion.

"We have an allegation, but at this point it is very sketchy," Buccini said this morning. "We don't know if it happened in a nursing home, a private home or somewhere else."

Berks Heim is the county-operated skilled nursing and intermediate-care hospital, located along County Road in Bern Township.

Krick was not a Berks Heim employee, but she and Betz had visited Strickler routinely since the woman was admitted to the facility May 1, according to police.

Troopers said Krick and Betz visited Strickler twice for a total of nearly five hours June 13. About a minute after they left for the second time, a Berks Heim employee found the woman dead, authorities reported.

Strickler, a former Womelsdorf resident, suffered from "symptoms of the aging process," according to Nicholas D. Cafarelli, Berks Heim administrator.

Man dies in house on-suicide

Reading, Pa. (AP) — A man died in a house fire that police say was the result of a suicide attempt. The fire broke out in the house of Howard V. related to the domestic dispute.

The fire was reported around 11:30 a.m., and it took about 30 minutes to get under control.

Central Berks Fire Company Chief Thomas Dietrich said there were problems getting water to the fire scene, located in a rural area. He said the hot weather also caused problems.

In addition to Central Berks, volunteers from Leesport, Shoemaker, Shartlesville, Mount Pleasant and Bernville responded.

A Shartlesville firefighter, James R. Berger, suffered heat exhaustion and was taken to Reading Hospital for treatment.

U.N. reports 500 casualties in Kurdistan

From our news services

GENEVA — U.N. guards in northern Iraq have received news of 500 people killed or wounded in clashes between the Iraqi army and Kurds, apparently in the past two days, a U.N. spokesman said today.

"U.N. guards in Sulaimaniya and Arbil have received news of serious clashes between the Kurds and the Iraqi army," spokesman Pierre Melus told Reuters.

He was unable to say how many of the 500 were dead, whether any of the casualties were Iraqi soldiers, or exactly when the violence took place. Communications in Iraq are difficult, but it appeared that the clashes took place in the last two days.

A Kurdish representative in Geneva said that at least 500 people had been killed and 500 wounded in Sulaimaniya. He said four were killed in Arbil.

The population had seized control of Sulaimaniya and five to seven tanks were burned-out shells, he said.

Court wants more in Cohen appeal

By Mark Abrams

The state Supreme Court wants to hear more arguments before ruling whether prosecutors can use certain evidence in the murder-trial of Stuart Richard Cohen.

Defense attorney Emmanuel H. Dimitriou confirmed Thursday that the court wants him and state prosecutors to appear in Philadelphia the week of Oct. 21.

"I don't have any knowledge as to why they want the case reargued," said Dimitriou, who appeared before the panel last October on behalf of Cohen to argue issues in the nearly 17-year-old case.

Cohen, 35, formerly of Reading and now believed to be living in New Jersey, is charged with third-degree murder and conspiracy in the November 1974 death of Steve E. Warunek, 18, in Eggleston Park.

Prosecutors claim Cohen paid $700 to George Arms and co-conspirators Jack Geisler and Anthony D. Reynolds to have Warunek killed. Arms, who was convicted of actually slaying Warunek, was later murdered in prison. Geisler and Reynolds both pleaded guilty and served jail terms.

Cohen was found guilty of third-degree murder by a Berks County jury in 1975, but the conviction was overturned in 1980 on Dimitriou's appeal that the pro-

Fate of Helms bill on AIDS uncertain

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House opponents of a Senate bill setting criminal penalties for AIDS-infected doctors who don't reveal their disease to patients say they believe the House will reject the legislation.

But some lobbyists for health-care professionals said that with public concern high about the spread of the fatal disease, the political dynamics of the issue make a House vote unpredictable.

The Senate on Thursday approved, 81-18, a measure by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that would impose prison terms and fines on doctors who have the virus that causes AIDS and who perform certain procedures without informing patients of that fact.

include surgery, root canals and other treatments in which the disease could accidentally be transmitted by exposure to blood.

Immediately after approving the Helms measure, senators approved, 99-0, a bill calling on medical workers who perform risky procedures to be tested for AIDS.

The measure, developed by administration and Senate leaders, would threaten to retrain the workers to refrain from the dangerous treatments unless they receive permission from specialists and patients.

The final congressional decision on how to deal with infected doctors will be made during negotiations between the Senate and House, which has not considered
